

Meningitis Statement

Georgia state law requires all students residing in University housing to receive information about meningococcal disease. Evidence suggests that college students are at an increased risk of contracting meningococcal disease if they live in residence halls. All resident students must either provide proof they have received the meningitis vaccine or provide a signed waiver acknowledging the risk to themselves and others of not receiving the meningitis immunization.

Please read the following information:

1. Meningococcal disease is a serious disease that can lead to death within only a few hours of onset; one in ten cases is fatal; and one in seven survivors of the disease is left with a severe disability, such as the loss of a limb, developmental disability, paralysis, deafness, or seizures;
2. Meningococcal disease is contagious but a largely preventable infection of the spinal cord fluid and the fluid that surrounds the brain;
3. Scientific evidence suggests that college students living in dormitory facilities are at a moderately increased risk of contracting meningococcal disease; and
4. Immunization against meningococcal disease will decrease the risk of the disease.

Meningitis vaccinations are available by appointment at KSU Student Health Services.
